Spend three weeks this summer in Crete gaining hands-on experience in excavation, recovery and study of the human skeletal remains at the burial ground of Orthi Petra and the site’s archaeological museum. For the duration of the program, students are based in Eleutherna, an agricultural and shepherding community, and immersed in local culture. Students learn about the medicinal and culinary uses of regional plants, take field trips to museums and other archaeological sites, participate in ceramics workshops, and hike on E4 (the European long-distance path). This program offers the opportunity to take 3 to 7 credits and is open to all majors and students from other institutions. Adelphi students fulfill several general education requirements, including social sciences (SS), global (G), quantitative reasoning (Q) and art (A).

Estimated Program Cost: $1,250 + tuition + airfare
